

Last night's episode featured a few interesting developments, headlined, of course, by the return of Chris Wood (Supergirl) as Kai Parker, who by hour's end, got back to his villainous ways as he managed to take down Damon and kidnap the sleeping Elena. We also learned more about Bonnie's psychic blast, which apparently opened up her own personal dimension and helped her reunite with Enzo. Meanwhile, Stefan had to deal with the ghosts of his past (while also having another brush with death) and is now on a path of redemption. Next week's episode, which officially kicks off the endgame, will finally reunite the Salvatore brothers on an absolutely insane mission to save Elena & stop Cade once-and-for-all, but judging by the latest promo, all is not going to go according to plan and one of the brothers may find themselves on a one-way trip to Hell. Elsewhere, Alaric & Caroline will have to deal with their daughters' burgeoning magical powers. Check out the

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/horror/new-extended-promo-stills-for-the-vampire-diaries-season-8-episode-14-its-a149052>