

Following reports that Chinese actor-singer Andy Lau had landed a Scientist role in Marvel Studios' next outing post-The Avengers, Iron Man 3, Hong-Kong-based newspaper Apple Daily has confirmed the role, in addition to more production details. Praising the amount of screen time Andy will supposedly have, the report adds that Chinese actresses Fan Bingbing and Yang Mi are joining the Shane Black-directed threequel as as Andy's wife and assistant respectively. What's rather more interesting in the report (transcribed via AndyLauSounds) says: The film will have location shooting in Beijing and Shanghai, it will narrates that the daughter of Robert Downey Jr.'s friend was kidnapped and brought to China, in order to save his friend's daughter, he flew over from America to China to seek help from Andy to strengthen his abilities to fight The Mandarin. You will see Iron Man fly over The Great Wall of China, National Palace

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=59992>