

According to MovieHole.net, the Jeff Wadlow-directed sequel has new plot details and casting news before it starts filming. All of the core cast members that made the original Kick-Ass great are back so you can expect to see Aaron Johnson, Chloe Mortez and Christopher Mintz-Plasse back in action. They also confirm that the studio is in talks for Garrett M. Brown to reprise his role as Dave's father in the film and it is said that this time around he will have much more to do in the Kick-Ass sequel. The studio is also starting auditions for the role of Uncle Ralph -- the criminal guardian of Chris A.K.A Red Mist which is expected to be filled by an actor similar to Mark Strong so keep a look out for casting news on that. The story will be similar to Superman 2 where someone finds out about the heroes' identities -- mostly

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/TheAlexLynch/news/?a=62240>