

The official wponx Instagram account has been posting mysterious photos from the set of 20th Century Fox's upcoming Wolverine sequel, Logan, and this morning, they released yet another, which may be their most unclear yet. Like the ones before it, this one also looks to be from the New Mexico set, but unlike the others, this one actually features one of the characters, although you'd be hard pressed trying to figure out who it is. The character in-question is sporting some sort of bowler hat, which doesn't really fit Wolverine's style, so it's almost definitely someone we haven't seen before. Could it be the rumored villain Mister Sinister? Or is it someone else?
