

Kevin Tancharoen already expressed his big interest in Mortal Kombat universe, first by making that short film Mortal Kombat: Rebirth and then by directing a web-series with popular characters. Well, it seems all that work paid off, because Warner Bros. and New Line are moving forward with the reboot and they hired Tancharoen to direct. From The Hollywood Reporter: "Mortal Kombat is heading back to the big-screen. New Line is hiring the filmmakers of the popular Mortal Kombat digital series, made earlier this year by corporate sibling Warner Bros. Digital Distribution, to take on a new adaptation of the classic 1990s fighting game." Below is the short film he directed: So, what do you think?

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/Wolvie09/news/?a=47333&t=New\_iMortal\_Kombati\_Movie\_In\_The\_Works\_Kevin\_Tancharoen\_To\_Direct