

Not a whole lot of details from this particular announcement, but Collider spoke to Fox CEO Tom Rothman at Cinemacon, where Rothman reportedly "all but confirmed that a New Mutants movie will be announced soon"--- Collider:When can fans expect an announcement on some of these other properties? Before Comic-Con, after Comic-Con, at Comic-Con? Rothman: In the summer. Collider: Are you talking to filmmakers right now? Rothman: Let me just say this. All I have to say is, I agree with you in your assessment of the potential in a lot of these [Marvel] characters. X-Men: First Class definitely changed the vast majority of opinions here about Fox and their handling of the X-Men franchise. Of course, many attribute that turn around to Matthew Vaughn and the film's talented acting ensemble so it will be difficult to formulate an opinion about the project until more details are revealed. The New Mutants
