

Couple of Hobbit stories here. First up, Elijah Wood (who played Frodo in the Lord Of The Rings trilogy) discusses his reprisal of the character in an interview with Yahoo! Movies. He apparently has a very small role in The Hobbit: An Unexpected Journey (he can be seen briefly in the first trailer), but he very much enjoyed his time on set and seeing familiar faces. "It kind of felt like a family reunion," Wood said. "I think I anticipated it feeling more surreal than it ended up feeling. What struck me is that it just felt like no time had passed, and suddenly we were just doing it again." In much more interesting news, however, Alberta Film Ratings has officially classified the second theatrical trailer for the film, which is the first part of Peter Jackson's adaptation of The Hobbit novel. No word on when the trailer will debut, but

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/BatFreak/news/?a=61772>