

Thanks to the guys over at General's Joes, we now have a new batch of details for the Jon Chu directed film G.I. Joe: Retaliation, which showcases three new vehicles which will appear in the film, such as a new version of the Cobra Hiss Tank. For more details, head on over to the source for more. One such toy incorporated into the film is the COBRA AIR BOAT. This massive and ominous looking boat is loosely based on the water moccasin toy with added elements that included twin engines, counter-rotating blades and enough horsepower to push it across dry land. Inspired by another classic G.I. JOE/Hasbro toy and sure to excite fans from every age group, the film features a new version of the iconic COBRA HISS TANK. To create this massive vehicle the production team started with a M548 base that took 12 weeks to build before adding the outer shell

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/Castle/news/?a=67665>