

We sure are giving this guy and his Wonder Woman fetish a lot of coverage considering he isn't even attached to the movie in any way shape or form, but if there is a possibility we could see it happen with the incredibly talented and original Refn at the helm we will keep on plugging away with his thoughts on the matter. The latest come from an interview with The Playlist. Refn reiterates his interest, adding that he feels he was "born" to make the movie. His Drive star Christina Hendricks has been said to be his number one choice too, but this time he says he doesn't necessarily want her for the role.. "I would love to make 'Wonder Woman,' " Refn declares enthusiastically. "I would be the best at making 'Wonder Woman.' I was born to make 'Wonder Woman.' To do a movie about a universe where women are more powerful
