

Thanks to our friends over at Digital Spy, we have the following interview with The Walking Dead's Norman Reedus. The actor plays crossbow wielding bad-ass 'Daryl Dixon', an original character created specifically for the show. Below are a few key excerpts, but be sure to click on the link at the bottom of the page to read the interview in full. The Walking Dead returns to AMC on Sunday, October 14th. On Taking On A Larger Role In Season Three: Well, I've kind of stepped up in certain areas, so there is more for me to do. Shane (Jon Bernthal) left last year and he was a big part of the storyline - we have a lot of new characters, it's sort of spreading out. I don't want to give anything away, but I've sort of become Rick's right hand man in a way, so I'm doing a lot of physical stuff. On Playing

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=68406>