

Source: The Hollywood Reporter Speaking at NYCC today, Geoff Johns said "there is the hope that we will eventually see one" even though Green Lantern seriously underperformed at the box office this summer. He also announced that Adult Swim's "Robot Chicken" will do a DC Comics satire special next summer similar to what they've done on Star Wars. Johns went on to say, "Obviously, you want it to be as big as Titanic." But he added: "I hope that the character gets another film, and it will be live-action again - I guarantee. "There was a lot of really good stuff in the movie," Johns said, adding that the director's cut of the film adds scenes which enhance protagonist's story and character. Well, we at CBM know that the additional scenes don't really feature any of the stuff we were hoping for so I have to say Johns, I don't

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GraphicCity/news/?a=48193&t=NYCC_11_emGeoff_Johnsem_Says_Theres_Still_Hope_For_A_emGreen_Lanternem_Sequel