

I think it goes without saying that Stan Lee has created some of the most iconic characters in the comic book universe and has made a lasting impression on several generations of readers. Today, in conjunction with 1821 Comics, Stan Lee and his POW! Entertainment debuted a new series of comics aimed at today's younger generation. The characters are designed to be kid-friendly, as well as parent approved. Here is what Lee had to say about the project: "The whole idea is to give them the kind of stories that they haven't read before that they can easily understand and relate to. While we want these to be reasonably educational and good for kids _ that goes without saying _ but our main purpose to be entertaining ... kids have a great sense of humor if you can reach them the right way." The characters, which include Reggie the Veggie Crocodile, are the

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/geekboymovienews/news/?a=48190&t=NYCC_11_POW_Entertainment_1821_Comics_Debut_New_Kids_Comics_Series