

In the first film Thor destroys the rainbow bridge thus preventing him from venturing back to Earth. Of course this issue was sort of solved in The Avengers because Odin mustered up some Dark Magic. But that came off as something they couldn't do all the time going forward, so now it seems they'll transport Jane Foster to Asgard instead. Well, according to Sir Anthony Hopkins, and you never question a Sir. "I haven't got a script yet but I believe Natalie and I have some scenes together this time." Hopkins says he's looking as much forward to "Thor 2" as he is to "Red 2", in which he plays a "crazy scientist". THOR 2 will be directed by Alan Taylor (Game of Thrones, The Sopranos) and will be released November 8, 2013. Chris Hemsworth, Tom Hiddleston, Anthony Hopkins, Natalie Portman, and Idris Elba are all expected to return.

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/nailbiter111/news/?a=63457>