

Bleeding Cool have spotted a post by Swedish newspaper 'Expressen', which claims that the actor has pulled out of a showjumping event in order to film a role in a big movie instead. So what? Well, it just so happens that their "sources" believe it to be the highly anticipated (and currently untitled) Bond 23! The paper reportedly asked both his agent and MGM for a comment, but they both refused to either confirm or debunk the news...normally a good indication that it's true. I'm not familiar with any of his past work, but he does seem like the kind of guy Daniel Craig's 007 could face off against (as the photo to the left surely proves) but be sure to share your thoughts on all this in the usual place!

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=46934&t=Ola_Rapace_Set_To_Join_The_Cast_Of_iBond_23i