

We always love when movies give nods to their core fan base with Easter Eggs. It's a practice that's been done for longer than you think but it really became popular with the Captain America reference in Iron Man. This past summer we had some great ones in Captain America [the original Human Torch], Thor [Odin's vault], X-Men: First Class [Rebecca Romijn], and Green Lantern [Yellow Lantern Teaser]. However, I really love it when movies give us the not so obvious Easter Eggs, like J. Michael Straczynski's cameo in Thor as the farmer who first attempts to pull mjolnir from the crater. Or the Star Sapphire logo on Carol Feris' helmet in Green Lantern. It's always appreciated by the true fans and it's a nice reward for us as we get to experience the film on a different level from the casual movie goer. Now

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GraphicCity/news/?a=45431&t=OPINION_POLL_Which_CBM_of_Summer_2011_Had_the_Best_Easter_Eggs