

It may be only one page of original art from Frank Miller's Dark Knight Returns, but someone thought it is well worth the money: "They figured it would sell for at least $100,000. Well, the auction was yesterday, and it sold for $448,125, making it "the single most valuable piece of American comic art to ever sell." That is a lot of money for only one page of art. But still, it is a great art from amazing four-issue comic book series. The person who bought it is anonymous. Here are some more details on the art, and a quote from Frank Miller himself: The image is the single most memorable image from the entire comic book series and the greatest image from the decade of the 1980s ever to come to market, as well as now standing as one of, if not the most desirable pieces of original comic art from any era

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/Wolvie09/news/?a=36896&t=Original\_Art\_From\_Frank\_Millers\_iDark\_Knight\_Returns\_i\_Sells\_For\_A\_Record\_Price