

We don't know for sure that Ocean Master will be the main villain of Aquaman, but it makes sense that whoever plays him needs to be in peak physical condition to take on someone like Jason Momoa on the big screen! As you can see below, Patrick Wilson is putting in some serious work to take on the role of Orm in the DC Films Universe, and he looks a lot more ready for battle than Nite-Owl ever did! Shooting is expected to begin in Queensland, Australia in the first half of 2017, while Wilson recently revealed that he has a costume fitting this week, hence why he's getting in shape here. Are you looking forward to seeing what the actor brings to the table as the half-brother of the King of Atlantis? As always, let us know your thoughts on the photo and remarks below in the comments section. In laws who sweat together...are awesome. thx for a brutal workout