

In an interview with Digital Spy to promote his new film Blood, British actor Paul Bettany has reiterated just how small a role he plays in the Iron Man franchise. While his voice-over work as 'Jarvis' (Tony Stark's AI "butler" of sorts) has become beloved by fans, it may come as a surprise to some of you that he doesn't count himself among them. Below, he discusses just how easy a job it really is for him, making it clear that he knows nothing about the films because he's never sent the full screenplay (however, he was for Marvel's The Avengers - something he describes as "an anomaly"). Bettany also reveals that he's never watched one of the films. Why not? Well, don't worry guys - it's nothing personal..! "I get brought in right at the last moment, where if they've worked out that they have a clarity issue or whatever, they

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=68762>