

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=28232&t=Picture Of Fully Costumed Spider-Man On The Los Angeles Set Of The Reboot>

On Location Vacations have posted the following image that was sent in to them from filming on Grand Ave, outside of the Museum of Contemporary Art, in Los Angeles last night. It's not clear whether this is Andrew Garfield or a stunt man, but you can see that Spider-Man doesn't have his belt (as many fans were hoping he would after its absence from the official picture that was released last week) and the costume seems to be considerably brighter in colour. One of our readers, Alex, sent us this great picture of Spidey running across the street and through "New York" traffic for the scene. His friend was able to catch the shot from his nearby apartment around 11 p.m. last night! Thanks to our friend ReallrOnMaN from SpiderMedia for the heads up! If you have any pictures from the set of this movie, or any other CBM, get in touch by clicking