

Marvel's The Avengers has kicked off with an even more impressive start overseas than any of us could have possibly imagined. Breaking record after record, the latest film from Marvel Studios has opened up at #1 in each of the territories that Disney has so far released it in, and looks set to take the US by storm next weekend. Critics and fans alike love the superhero ensemble and this positive word of mouth is sure to help the Joss Whedon helmed flick continue to take more and more money over the next few weeks. However, how much do you think it will ultimately end up making? With some analysts already predicting $1B+, do you think it's really possible that Earth's Mightiest Heroes will become equally as mighty when it comes to topping the likes of Avatar and The Dark Knight as one of the highest grossing films ever?! Here's your
