

The film that was your biggest disappointment of 2012 so far doesn't have to be the worst movie that you've seen. As you can see below, the list is made up of films with redeeming qualities. What I'm truly looking for with this poll is the film that you spent a lot of time anticipating and would satisfy all, or most of your overblown expectations, but by the time the curtains roll your left with a sour taste in your mouth from all of the missed opportunities.
