

With The Amazing Spider-Man set to be released next July, and Man of Steel a little under a year after that, it's a very exciting time to be a comic book fan. However, these two iconic superheroes have both undergone something of a makeover for their respective movies. While they're still instantly recognizable, Spider-Man has donned a pair of sneakers, lost his belt and instead has a fairly drastically different looking design of the classic red and blue. Superman meanwhile has lost his red trunks, the symbol on his cape and has an all round darker, slightly more alien look. The question now of course, is which of these new designs you guys think is best! And here is your chance to decide...
