

If haven't had the chance to see this yet, but I will even though the review have been less than positive. To put it mildly. Anyway, lets hear what you guys thought. When the movie was first announced fans were not too pleased as many felt that John Milius's version with Arnold Schwarzenegger was the definitive one, no reboot needed. Now this is of course a silly attitude to have without at least waiting to see how a new movie would shape up. But then Jason Momoa was cast and things got even worse. I admit to having serious doubts even when Pathfinder director Marcus Nispel was revealed to be at the helm. Momoa gained a few converts with his impressively ferocious turn as Khal Drogo in Game Of Thrones and is by some accounts the best things about an otherwise disappointing flick. So do you doubters feel vindicated? Do those that like

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/rorschachsrants/news/?a=45250&t=POLL_What_Did_You_Think_Of_iConan_The_Barbarian