

General Zod has had a few different looks in both the comics and live action over the years. Some pretty flamboyant, some bad-ass, some a bit more basic. Zack Snyder would seem to be going with a more basic look as yesterday's pics of Michael Shannon on set in Chicago will attest to. But of course we also know that he has been wearing a mo-cap suit for some scenes so chances are there will also be a very different look for him too. Obviously these pics don't give us the best look at Shannon that we could have but it's plain to see the costume is basically an all black version of Henry Cavill's Superman outfit. There are some subtle differences of course and we can't see the front but there does appear to be some sort of shield akin to Superman's "S". And what about Shannon himself? We can see
