

Thanks to Christopher Nolan's The Dark Knight Trilogy, we've seen some of Batman's most well-known villains brought to life on the big screen by some of the best actors in the world. While Batman has also faced off against a fair few gangsters (who could forget Tom Wilkinson's brilliant performance as Carmine Falcone in Batman Begins?) we've decided to keep this limited to the major villains who appeared in at various points throughout the trilogy. So, which of them came out on top as the best in your opinion? Heath Ledger may have won an Academy Award for his take on the Clown Prince of Crime in The Dark Knight, but are Ra's Al Ghul or Bane more to your liking? How about Two-Face, Scarecrow or Miranda Tate Talia Al Ghul?! Here's your chance to decide...
