

The One Ring.net has received a scoop from "Ringer Duff Man" of what could be a possible description for the upcoming trailer of Peter Jackson's The Hobbit: An Unexpected Journey: Starts with Bilbo (Ian Holm!!) talking to Frodo (Elijah Wood) at Bag End about his "adventures" and how he didn't tell him everything. Shows Gandalf making his proposition to young Bilbo and introducing all 13 dwarves by name as it cuts to each. Bilbo protests of course, because Bagginses belong at Bag End. The "big" scene is the dwarves, led by Thorin, singing a long slow song. I didn't catch all the words, but I have to assume it's from the book. Very ominous tone. Lots of images in a montage, of travelling and fighting. I think I saw some goblins, and maybe some troll legs, but it went by quickly. Some creepy ruins—looked almost like Moria, but without the majesty. I wasn't sure if
