

So, this had to happen eventually. Marvel Studios is still very secretive about the upcoming Shane Black-directed third chapter, Iron Man 3. They showed some early footage at San Diego Comic Con, but that's about it. Now, thanks to Ain't It Cool News and one of their sources, this could be a possible description of the trailer for the film. Check it out: "It opens with a voice over of Tony Stark talking about how the events of New York (I'm assuming the Avenger Movie) changed him, and how he's just not "into it" anymore. First scene is Iron Man with battle damage, laying down amid rubble and taking off his faceplate to show a bleeding Stark. Scenes of him arguing with Pepper Potts in the armory (cool shots of alternative Iron Man suits including the red white and blue one we've seen on your site already), press conferences, Tony

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/Wolvie09/news/?a=65655>