

The past few days have seen the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles' return to the big screen all over the news. After being slated for a Christmas 2013 release last week, producer Michael Bay recently stated that the reboot (which will be directed by Battle LA's Jonathan Liebesman) will have a new origin for the turtles, saying that they're "from an alien race". Of course, the die hard TMNT fans did not like the sound of that. Now, some more details for the movie have apparently showed up. Sources have told First Showing that the turtles are a part of "An entire race of inter-dimensional beings". Concerning a possible villain, the site has heard that the inter-dimensional storyline is happening because Krang will be a villain in the film, which would mark the first time the character has appeared on the big screen (and maybe along with that huge body suit and the

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/BatFreak/news/?a=56627>