

Making Star Wars has been very reliable for news on the Star Wars franchise since Disney resurrected the property, and they today have some very intriguing details on some key characters in Episode VIII. Those are the ones being played by Benicio del Toro, Laura Dern, and Kelly Marie Tran, and interestingly, it sounds like the former isn't going to be making his presence felt as a new big bad here. Benicio del Toro - described by the site as a classic "man in black," he's said to be dangerous and possibly connected to the casino set which was talked about online some time ago. Clad entirely in black (hence the moniker above), he's clean shaven with hair not all that different to Poe Dameron, and while it's been said that he's playing a villain, the heroes apparently don't see him as a bad guy...at least not at first! Laura Dern - called a "bombastic" character by the site, she's aristocratic and fancy in

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/scifi\_movies/star\_wars/possible-new-star-wars-episode-viii-character-details-a146844