

Marvel and Joss Whedon's superhero ensemble flick The Avengers is still filming away in Albuquerque, New Mexico. And while early promotion is expected in the coming weeks, I recently stumbled across potential reports from the secretive set, via Twitter user Lionheart3rd, whose apparently working on the film. From possibly further confirming an alien life form villainizing the team, to a potential "money shot," read on below! *First test explosion: Badassness! *Dargo'ing up the actors takes a bit *Scarlet came up to us and asked about our equipment. Funny watching her be impressed w/ us. She's pretty cool. *The crane shot of Hawkeye and Blackwidow is money. *Explosion 2: even badasser! *Watching them choreograph Cap beatin' up some aliens (or somethin) too cool. *The aliens use Jaffa staffs. Tel'c would not be pleased. *Everything is moving to the otherside of the set. It's funny watching Joss carry his chair. *Got the schedule for tomorrow, must try to be on that shift. *For

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=39058&:t=Possible_Revealing_Reports_From_The_Set_Of_iThe_Avengersi_Emerged