

Commencing principal photography in a few weeks, primarily in Albuquerque, New Mexico, Marvel & Joss Whedon's crossover spectacle The Avengers is shaping up greatly according to plan. And while it's known a great portion of filming will occur in Cleveland, Ohio, the productive On Location Vacations folks have been tipped scouted locations in the city. The Cleveland Museum (This was all the information we were provided and we're trying to confirm which museum, it could be The Cleveland Museum of Art or The Cleveland Museum of Natural History.) Cleveland Airport, and the [Glenn] NASA Research Center. While I've heard Plum Brook Station was being considered, in which the NASA center is inside the facility, these locations may be accurate. Although, since they're only "scouted", neither should be considered final. And also it was previously reported the 'Great Lakes Science Center' was being considered. Anyhow, while rehearsals supposedly occurred yesterday, look for The Avengers

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=34721&t=Potential_Scouted-Filming_Spots_For_iThe_Avengersi_In_Cleveland_Revealed