

Back in 2012, Donald Trump called The Dark Knight Rises "really terrific." He particularly loved the cinematography, but was he also a big fan of Bane? Played by Tom Hardy, one of the villain's most memorable moments came when he delivered a terrifying speech to the oppressed people of Gotham City, and if the video below is any indication, Trump may well have been inspired by Batman's nemesis. Also below is a comparison of part of the new President's inaugural address compared to the one delivered by Bane, and they definitely share some pretty major similarities, don't you guys think?

Donald Trump:
"Today's ceremony, however has very special meaning. Because today, we are not merely transferring power from one administration to another or from one party to another. But we are transferring power from Washington D.C. and giving it back to you... the people. For too long a small group in our nation's capital has reaped the rewards of government while the people have

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/batman/president-donald-trump-seemingly-plagiarized-the-dark-knight-rises-bane-in-a148333>