

Talking to IGN TV, Rick McCallum has confirmed that the working title of the long talked about TV series is STAR WARS: UNDERWORLD. He also assures fans that Lucasfilm are still very keen on making it a reality despite the current budgetary problems (they can't get the costs down to a manageable level for television apparently) and even reveals a few new details about the direction it would take. Check out the interview in full below. What do make of his comments? Are you still interested in seeing the show? Sound off with your thoughts in the usual place. gambling insider
