

What did you guys make of this week's episode? I like it, but thought the ending was a bit out of character for Shane, even though he was always a bit of a dick, he was also brave and always seemed ready to put himself in harms way for others. I just don't think the trust and mutual respect that was shown between he and Otis rang true with what he ended up doing. But hey. makes for a very interesting character turn anyway.
