

Marvel Entertainment CEO Ike Perlmutter is a very interesting character. With a net worth of $3.9 billion, the reclusive billionaire has rarely been spotted in public, and not so much as a single photograph of him can be found in either Getty Images or the Associated Press. Well, that's all changed thanks to The Hollywood Reporter after he was spotted during a visit with Donald Trump today. It's a well-known fact that Perlmutter is a big Trump supporter and that he made some pretty big donations during the reality TV star's bid to become President (which, as you know, was a success). So, why should you care about this guy? Well, as you may recall, he's proved to be a very divisive figure over the years due to the way he runs Marvel. In the past, we've heard that he's the one responsible for the way the Fantastic Four and X-Men have been treated in the comic books, while Marvel Studios President Kevin Feige

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/comics/marvel_comics/reclusive-marvel-ceo-ike-perlmutter-has-finally-been-caught-a147763