

For my money, Red Letter Media's Half In The Bag/Plinkett reviews offer some of the more unique and humorous takes on the latest movie releases out there. I do think they are quite harsh on The Amazing Spider-Man here, but it's still a fun watch.. So like I said, harsh. But that being said, I can't actually argue with any points the raise either, although I thought the performances were of a very high standard - Garfield in particular. Do you guys agree/disagree? Sound off below.
