

Promoting the latest Resident Evil theatrical release (entitled Resident Evil: Retribution), IGN Movies talked to the director of the film, Paul W.S. Anderson, and asked him about the possibilities of a Castlevania movie hitting the big screen in the near future. Down below, check out what the director said about a possible film adaptation of the acclaimed video game franchise that originated on the Nintendo Entertainment System in 1986! Would you like to see Paul W.S. Anderson involved in a live-action Castlevania movie? And, which main character from the franchise would you like to see brought to the big screen? Sound off in the comments below!

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/NerdyGeek/news/?a=66399>