

If there's one thing which has been dividing CBM lately, it's Christopher Nolan. I'll be honest, I really have no idea why, especially after the downright brilliant Batman Begins and The Dark Knight. While his more grounded and realistic take on the iconic DC superhero isn't to everyone's taste, there's surely no getting around the fact that he's responsible for bringing the character to the big screen in a much better way than past interpretations. Of course, that's just my opinion...what do you guys think? To be honest, I'm a little shocked by these results. Seeing as there's been a fairly large amount of users recently who have expressed their distaste over how Nolan has handled the Batman franchise, I was expecting the amount of negative votes to be a fair bit higher! As a big fan of both Batman Begins and The Dark Knight though, I'm pleased to see the way this

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=46773&t=RESULTS_What_Is_Your_Opinion_On_The_Dark_Knight_Rises_Director_Christopher_Nolan