

When Marvel Studios announced their "Phase Two" plans at the San Diego Comic-Con last week, comic book movie lovers were left with an awful lot to look forward to. Whether it's Edgar Wright's take on Ant-Man, the big screen debut of the Guardians of the Galaxy or Ben Kingsley as The Mandarin in Iron Man 3, there's numerous reasons why any one of the five movies listed above has the potential to become another instant classic in the eyes of fans. As you can see below, the results were all reasonably close (apart from Thor: The Dark World; any particular reason why?!) but the Russo Brothers take on Ed Brubaker's 'The Winter Soldier' clearly has you most excited. Check out the results below and sound off with your thoughts in the usual place!

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=64308>