

The cinematic Decepticon just will not stay dead. Despite numerous defeats and on-screen deaths at the hands of Optimus Prime, Megatron will indeed be back for Michael Bay's swan song, Transformers: The Last Knight. This actually shouldn't be too surprising as Michael Bay and Paramount released concept art for Megatron during the film's production this past Summer. Of particular interest is the fact that Megatron's eyes are red as opposed to Optimus Prime's purple. Those steeped in Transformers lore know that Optimus' new eye color is a sign that he's been corrupted by Dark Energon, a byproduct of Unicron's energy emission. With the Galactus inspired world-devourer en route to Earth, could Megatron actually be an ally of sorts for the remaining Autobots on Earth?

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/transformers/rethink-your-heroes-in-new-transformers-the-last-knight-tv-spot-a147977>