

Talking to Movieline about his new movie, Anonymous, the Welsh actor let slip a few more minor details about what it was like to work on The Amazing Spider-Man, commenting briefly on the story and on what director Marc Webb has brought to the production. The actor recently appeared to reveal the voice he'll be using for the Lizard in the movie, but we're yet to see any sort of image of what he'll look like...unless you count the blurry, unfinished CGI shots from Comic Con. We've seen the fervor growing around the Spider-Man reboot. Are you bracing yourself for the next six to eight months of having that in your life? No, I just did the gig. If you think about it too much, it just... But of course I'm really proud of it. I haven't seen it yet, obviously. But again, that was working with Marc Webb. Of course it's

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=48880&t=Rhys-Ifans-Talks-iThe-Amazing-Spider-Man-iComments-On-Marc-Webb-Story-And-More>