

Speaking with Empire, Sir Ridley Scott talks about his next project Prometheus, a prequel to his science fiction classic Alien. Scott discusses the possible rating for Prometheus, suggesting that it will be R rated and that it'll be more "stressful" than gory. He also says that the back story for The Space Jockey was one of the factors in his wanting to return to the Alien universe. On The Possible Rating For Prometheus... "The question is, do you go for the PG-13, [which] financially makes quite a difference, or do you go for what it should be, which is R? Essentially, it's kinda R. It's not just about the blood, it's about ideas that are very stressful. I'm not an idiot, but I'll do everything I can to get the most aggressive film I can." On His Interest In Returning To The Alien Universe... "[I've wanted to revisit the 'Alien'

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/BatFreak/news/?a=57081>