

After a successful run in theaters and garnering praise from both critics and audiences, 20th Century Fox's Planet Of The Apes reboot, Rise Of The Planet Of The Apes, debuted on DVD and Blu-Ray last Tuesday, December 13th. Now, The Hollywood Reporter is reporting that, based on sales from that week ending on the 18th, the film made it to the top spot on both home video sales charts. It beat out Kung Fu Panda 2 (one of the most successful animated movies of the year) on both the Nielsen VideoScan First Alert and Blu-Ray Discs sales charts. Rise Of The Planet Of The Apes generated 49% of its sales in Blu-Ray Sales. The exact numbers are currently unknown at the moment, but we'll update when those numbers come in. Rise of the Planets of the Apes, from 20th Century Fox Home Entertainment, debuted at No. 1 on both national home video

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/BatFreak/news/?a=51711&t=RISE_OF_THE_PLANET_OF_THE_APES_Debuts_At_The_Top_Of_Home_Video_Sales_Charts