

We have all seen it now, the infamous line of poster from The Dark Knight Rises trailer that reads Rogues with the R made to look like the symbol for Batman's trusty side kick Robin. A lot of different ideas have surfaced on why it is in the movie to begin with. Some thought it was just a playful nod to the character done by Nolan and company, others thought it had more literal implications such as The Boy Wonder actually making an appearance in the film. Now, according to Empire, the sign was made by an extra. On the shoot that day extras were required to bring their own props and costumes so it is not a surprise that someone was able to sneak this in. From Empire The day this scene was shot, there were 10,000 extras there at Heinz Field. Most of them brought their own props and costumes, so

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JakeLester/news/?a=51603&t=Robin_Reference_In_THE_DARK_KNIGHT_RISES_Trailer_Was_Extras_Doing_Not_Nolans