

He called THOR "pitiful" and gave it 1 1/2 stars. X-Men: First Class? "Competent weekend entertainment" which scored a slightly better 2 1/2 stars. Oh, and what of Green Lantern? Surprisingly, that was awarded the same score as Fox's mutant prequel, and he, "...liked it more than Thor." So, what of Captain America: The First Avenger?! In surprising news, he liked it more than all of them! Here are some excerpts from the review, but click on the link below to read it in its entirety. It was a pleasure to realize, once "Captain America: The First Avenger" got under way, that hey, here is a real movie, not a noisy assembly of incomprehensible special effects. Of course it's loaded with CGI. It goes without saying it's preposterous. But it has the texture and takes the care to be a full-blown film. You know, like with a hero we care about and who has

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=42403&t=Roger Ebert Offers A Surprisingly Positive Review Of iCaptain America The First Avengeri