

Ron had high praise for George R.R. Martin, who was a staff writer on his ABC cult television series, Beauty and the Beast. He said George's scripts were high quality, making them very distinctive and unique from the others. He always look forward to performing what George had written. And now that George's HBO series, Game of Thrones is doing incredibly well many are wondering if Perlman would be a part of the cast at some point. As for Hellboy the actor still isn't confident that it will ever be made, but won't give up hope just yet. He believes the third part of the trilogy is necessary since it would answer many of the questions that were left open from the first two films. I really enjoyed the first two films in the franchise, and would like to see a third, but I won't cry if it never gets made. They
