

DC have set the benchmark for animated features for years now. All of their releases have been at the very least watchable with most rising to the excellence mark. They have been criticized for focusing too much on Batman and Superman however, Batman especially. It is a legit concern as DC have so many other great characters worth exploring in animation but to be honest, when the quality is as good as it has been and when DC choose to adapt bonafide classics like Frank Miller's Year One as far as I'm concerned they can make their next 10 features Batman centric. I'm sure you can gather from that that I liked this latest flick, Batman Year One. Hell I loved it. I was already a fan of the comic and this has to be one of the most faithful adaptations..live action or animated..I have seen. It really doesn't miss

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/rorschachsrants/news/?a=47948&t=Ror_Reviews_iBatman_Year_One