

Released back when John Carpenter earned and lived up to his title as "The Master Of Suspense", Halloween spawned an endless stream of similar (and inferior) films, 7 sequels and a remake by Rob Zombie. But for me, and many others, this is still the Daddy! We all know the story: On Halloween night young Michael Myers brutally murders his sister and spends the following 15 years in a mental institution where he is treated by Dr Loomis (Donald Pleasence), until one Halloween Myers escapes and returns to his hometown of Haddonfield to indulge his penchant for killing promiscuous babysitters, with Loomis in pursuit. One of these babysitters is Laurie Strode (Jamie Lee Curtis - sensible, clever, prudish..bound to survive!). As her friends go under Myers' knife, she must fight for survival against the seemingly unstoppable madman. Plot wise that's your lot really. - but that's all you need. Re-watching this

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/rorschachsrants/news/?a=69242>