

It's kind of hard to write about this movie in some ways. I mean what can be said that hasn't been said before. Superman established the CBM, and arguably the Summer blockbuster too. A true, bonafide classic. Loved by most, respected by all. But how does it hold up today? If you will indulge me as I go a bit "Harry Knowles" on this and tell you a story about my first time seeing the movie. I was about 7 I think and just discovering super heroes in the comics passed down to me by my brothers. But they were all Marvel stuff -X-Men mainly- so although I had obviously heard of Superman and knew of the movie, this would be my first time learning about him as I sat down to watch it. I remember being completely blown away. The music, the special effects. I did believe a man was flying.

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/rorschachsrrants/news/?a=45831&t=Ror_Revisits_iSuperman_The_Movie_1978