

Although there have been denials from both Michael Bay and Shia LaBeouf about a return to the Transformers franchise, Rosie Huntington-Whiteley doesn't seem so convinced. While talking with the Los Angeles Times, Rosie had the following to say... "We'll see about that," Huntington-Whiteley told Los Angeles Times, Monday at the Hollywood Awards, seemingly doubtful about LaBeouf's statement that he's done with the Transformers franchise. Asked if the actor could be persuaded to return for another "Transformers," she replied: "I think so. He'll kill me for saying that." This also might finally put to rest the Jason Statham rumors that have been running rampant around the web. Although I guess he could still be in the movie as a new army type interacting with the Transformers. You can check out the video below... The question now is, would you want to see another Transformers film with the current cast and direction or

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/johnarturo/news/?a=48909&t=em_Rosie_Huntington-Whiteleyem_Hopes_Shia_LaBeouf_Comes_Back_For_Another_Transformers_Movie